Police dog teams to compete in West Sac

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento police dogs "Zar" and "Chance" will have a chance to show off their skills in competition on Saturday, and you're invited to watch.

West Sacramento K-9 officer Roger Kinney (Zar's partner) is chief organizer of the "2011 Lawdogs Challenge," to be held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at River City High: Those who show up around 11-1 can check out demonstrations from local firefighters and SWAT teams (including a "Peacekeeper" armored vehicle) as well as U.S. Marine vehicles. A veterinary doctor can answer your questions about dog health. The "protection" element of the day's dog team competition is scheduled for about 12:30-1.

Kinney and fellow West Sac K-9 officer Dave Stallions are part of the squad that is setting up the competition, so they will only enter the events unofficially. But visiting teams from all over will face a variety of challenges, beginning with a closed event on Friday evening.

The Friday night part of the competition will test the ability of trained dogs to find hidden narcotics.

"We're going to have basically a Greyhound bus with five 'finds' hidden on it, and each dog will have to find all five finds within a time limit," said Kinney.

Saturday will find the dogs and their human partners dealing with other challenges, like obstacle courses and protection from foam-padded "bad guys."

"There are things the dogs will have to go through and jump over," said Kinney. "They're judged not only on whether they do it, which they should, but whether they touch equipment they're not supposed to."

And there may be some intentional distractions during the competition, designed to test the dogs' discipline and concentration.

Zar – Kinney's canine partner – is smaller than some people would expect.

"Zar is a five-year old Dutch Shepherd," said Kinney. "A lady in Hollywood bought him when he was three months old, and he kept nipping her. So she had him neutered, but he still nipped, and she decided she couldn't keep him. But he passed all 13 of our tests."

Being a K-9 officer is a responsibility that doesn't end when the team's shift comes to a conclusion.

"He lives at home, hangs out on my couch, plays with my kids – he's probably the best-disposed animal of the 24 dogs we train with," Kinney told the News-Ledger.

When triggered, he can be "leaning out the car window snarling and frothing at the mouth," said Kinney, but when gently introduced to strangers – including classrooms full of kids – "he often rolls over on his back."

"After meeting him, people often ask, 'are you sure he's a police dog?" said Kinney.

But Zar is smart and may live longer than some of his larger cousins such as German shepherds. And he has a lot of presence for a 55-pounder.

"He had one (suspect) try to crush his head and another was beating him with a stick – it tore off his dew claw and opened his head. It looked real bad, but he was all right. Afterward, the guy was saying that this must have been a 110-pound dog."

Zar is trained to find hiding suspects, drugs, and anything that people have recently dropped.

Once, last year, a fleeing suspect jumped into a West Sacramento waterway trying to escape, and Zar was turned loose to find the man. Zar was seen swimming with something with a "Batman" emblem in his mouth. Kinney thought the dog was shirking his duty, and told him to get back to work. Zar picked up the item again. It turned out that Zar had latched on to the Batman-style underwear worn by the deceased suspect, who was just underwater. The man had apparently broken his neck diving into shallow water.

The other local police dog, "Chance," is specially trained to find explosives with partner Dave Stallions.

The group regularly trains with other regional K-9 teams, practicing their skills in parks and buildings around the Sacramento area.

You can find more information on the local K-9 squad at www.wsk9.org or on Facebook.

State still optimistic on Indian center

The News-Ledger last week reported an update on the California Indian Heritage Center, a California state park site planned for 43 city-owned acres on the northeastern riverfront.

The West Sacramento City Council on June 1 approved the state's general plan for the development, with some clarifications. But it was noted that there were concerns about the feasibility of developing the property.

The project required an environmental impact report (EIR). Various agencies reviewed and commented on the EIR, and raised questions about whether the state could get approval to build at the location's river levee.

After going to press for last week's article, the News-Ledger spoke to Catherine Taylor, district superintendent for the state parks department. She is managing the project. The News-Ledger asked her how serious were the concerns about developing on the levee.

She was still optimistic about the museum and park.

"We don't really perceive it as a serious setback," Taylor told the News-Ledger. "I don't think we've heard any concerns in any of this discussion that is insurmountable."

Pomp, circumstance, & joy

More than one mortarboard went into the air as commencement ceremonies wound up for River City High School's Class of 2011 on Saturday. Festivities were held at the campus in Southport.

West Sacramento's Class of 2011 graduated on Saturday morning in ceremonies at River City High School.

Students heard remarks from such notables as Principal Katie Nemer and school board president Dave Westin, as well as a speech from graduating student Tiffany Ma, one of the class's valedictorians.

The class's valedictorians are Viktoriya Barnyak, Daralinn Chhun, Alyssa Coffin, Amber Dixon, Melony Ferguson, Dolores Figueroa, Leah Judson, Korrthee Kenworthy, Jordan Kersey, Aleksandra Kireyeva, Tiffany Ma, Rudy Maltez, Rebecca McNeil, Samantha OCampo, Christina Penkov, Brante Ruaro, Micayla Russel, Majed Sayedi, Calvin Tern, Hien Truong and Liliana Valdez Padilla.

Senior class officers for the Class of 2011 were Micayla Russel, president; Christian Guerrero, vice president; Anna Ramirez, Secretary; and Ozmar Aburto, treasurer.

Supervisor joins governor to promote budget

Governor Brown assembled a bipartisan group of government, business and labor leaders on Monday to drum up support for his budget plan and proposed tax extensions. The state faces a severe budget deficit.

Among several people giving remarks in favor of the governor's plan (which mixes budget cuts with certain tax extensions) was West Sacramento's Mike McGowan, a fellow member of the Democratic Party. McGowan is on the Yolo County Board of Supervisors, and attended the press conference in his position as first vice president of the California State Association of Counties, or CSAC.

Like Brown, McGowan blamed obstructionists in the Republican Party for blocking the budget and blocking a chance for the public to vote on the proposed tax extensions.

"A wise political philosopher said recently about this particular issue that we can't sit around and let the state go to hell," McGowan said at the press conference. "That's exactly what's going to happen if we don't take action."

McGowan said a "handful of Republicans" were "playing chicken" with the budget issue.

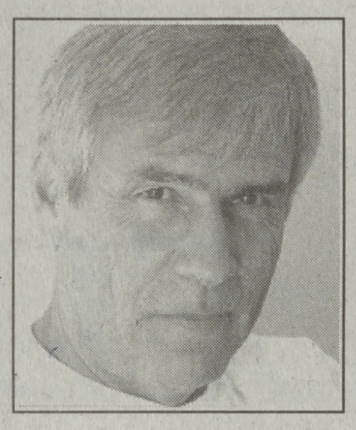
Never-ending problem: what to wear to work

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

A few days ago a friend of mine commented on the fact that every time she runs into me, I seem to be wearing a white t-shirt and jeans.

"Well," I admitted, "once the summer weather finally arrives, that is pretty much what I always wear."

"Men are so lucky," she said, "they don't have to give any thought at all to what they wear each day, and us women even seem to like it that way."

"What do you mean?" I asked with interest.

"Well," she explained, "there was a recent poll taken in a women's magazine and when asked what men looked best wearing, jeans and a t-shirt was the pick of most women, followed by a tuxedo."

"Really?" I asked, a little surprised that either one had been mentioned in the top two. Anyway, as our little chat about how easy men have it when it comes to what clothes to wear each day, I began to recall a similar conversation my wife and I had many years ago about pretty much the same subject, and it went a little something like this:

"Why do you look so depressed on such a pretty morning?" I asked my wife as she stared with sleepy eyes into her clothes closet.

"I'm just trying to figure out what to wear to work this morning," she answered with a big sigh.

"So, what's the problem?" I asked, being the insensitive man I am.

"There's absolutely nothing to wear in there," explained my wife, sadly pointing at all the clothes in her closet.

"Sure there is," I said. "Just look at all those clothes. In fact, that thick wooden rod they're hanging on is almost bent in two from all the weight."

"But they're just the same old things that I've worn to work a hundred times before. And do you really want to know what I see when I look into this closet?"

"Sure. What?"

"I see things that need to be ironed, or mended, or sent to the cleaners, or hemmed, or just plain thrown out, but I don't see anything I really want to wear to work today. And even if there was something I really wanted to wear today, it's still just one big pain."

"Why's that?" I asked naively.

"Because there are all these rules you have to remember."

"What rules?" I asked, not having a clue what she was talking about.

"It would take me hours to go over all the rules, Daryl."

"So how about just telling me a few of them?"

"Okay, to begin with, you can never mix fabrics, your belt and purse have to match your shoes, your earrings have to go with your outfit, you can't show any cleavage at work, your shoes have to be darker than your hose, you can only wear white shoes between Memorial day and Labor Day, and if you want to look thin and stylish, it's best to wear black. Believe me, the list of rules goes on and on. You men are so lucky. You don't have to put any thought at all into what you wear. I mean, a man can wake up in the morning and decide he wants to be 'Mr. Pink Shirt Guy' for a day and it's no big deal."

"Look," I suggested, stating what I believed to be the obvious, "if you're unhappy with your wardrobe, why don't you just go out and buy yourself some new clothes?"

"But that's not the answer. Even when I do buy myself a new dress, I'm usually bored with it after I wear it a few times and it just becomes another old outfit in the closet. The real problem is all the pressure women are under to always look good each and every day."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, not only are men always looking at women, but the women I work with check each other out from head to toe, too. And to show you just how hopeless it is, there's this one woman I work with who actually gets it right every single day. I mean, her hair and makeup are always perfect, her clothes fit just the way they're supposed to, her shoes and accessories always pull her outfit together, and you know what?"

"What?"

'You can never mix fabrics, your belt and purse have to match your shoes, your earrings have to go with your outfit, you can't show any cleavage at work, your shoes have to be darker than your hose, you can only wear white shoes between Memorial day and Labor Day. . .'

"Everyone hates her!"

"Hey," I said as a light bulb suddenly went off in my male head, "I think I've got a solution to your problem."

"And what might that be?"

"Uniforms!" I suggested with the same kind of pride that Columbus must have felt when he figured out the world wasn't flat.

"Uniforms?" asked my wife, smiling.

"Sure, why not? Just think how easy it would be for women to come up with an outfit every morning if everyone had to wear the very same uniform."

"Let me see if I understand you correctly. You're suggesting that every woman in the whole country wear exactly the same outfit to work every morning?"

"Well," I said, always willing to tweak one of my brilliant ideas a tad if needed, "how about this? It would be the same outfit, but it would come in all kinds of different colors?"

"And just what might this universal work outfit look like?" asked my wife, slowly shaking her head from side to side.

"Oh, I don't know. But I've always thought those white blouses and pleated plaid shirts that all the girls wear to Our Lady of Grace Catholic School are kinda cute."

"Get out of here, Daryl! I have to get ready for work!"

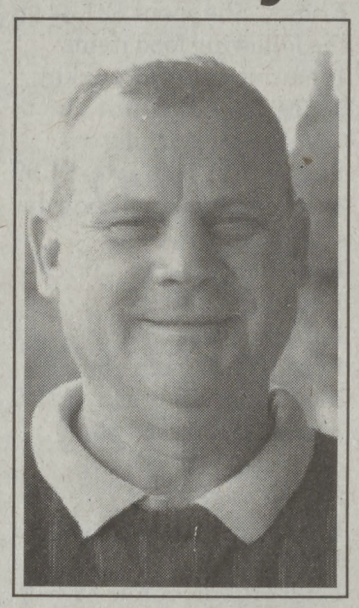
West Sac's youth swimming, baseball & softball leagues under way



BY DON SCHATZEL

The West Sacramento Dolphin youth swim team is in action again this year at the West Sacramento Recreation Center, competing in the Mother Lode conference. On the weekend of June 4, the Dolphins defeated Fair Oaks by a team score of 412-388.

A new record for the boys 11-12 age group 200-meter medley relay was established by the team of Brannan Wright, Ryan Dela Rosa,Quinn Reidel and Nick Puliz at 2.24.10.

The Dolphins also splashed their way to a victory over Arden Hills, 512-302. Another new team record was set by Jonathon Kellman in the age 13-14 Boys 50-meter butterfly at 27.62.

The Dolphins will host the League Champs meet on July 23, 24.

Speaking of tournaments, Wayne Del Nero, the president of District 6 Little League Baseball and girls softball has announced West Sacramento is hosting and participating in lots of upcoming tournaments.

District 6 includes Rio Linda, Natomas, Sierra, and Northridge baseball and softball little leagues .

The Farm Jamboree at Alyce Norman/Bryte Playfields was scheduled for June 12, with 19 teams of players ages 6-8.

West Sacramento Girls softball will be hosting this years minor, major and junior all-star tournaments again at Alyce Norman. The local major division team is the defending district champions.

West Sacramento Girls Softball, Washington Little League and West Sacramento Little League are also participating in the Tournament of Champions. West Sacramento Girls Softball majors are defending Champs as the "Chicas" of 2010 were last year's TOC winner, and the "Angels" were the runner-up.

This year in major league softball, the "Devils," led by Meghan McKeever and Gabrielle Ridenour, the Angels, led by Alissa Klein and Hannah McCann, and the Blue Devils, led by Amarissa Medina and Crystal Diaz, are all planning on having a great tournament.

Congratulations are due to the Bridgeway Island Elementary School girls soccer team, who nipped Southport Elementary 2-1 to win the district girls' soccer championship!

Hosting league tournaments and swim meets in West Sacramento gives each local league a chance to operate their snack bar and generate the revenue to help defray the costs of the league operation.

Tournaments also bring in lots of tourists to West Sacramento to spend money on lunch, dinner, gasoline, and general shopping. Visitors also do some sight-seeing, such as viewing the baseball sculpture in front of City Hall. When games are on Thursdays, visitors to West Sacramento can go to the Farmers Market. Hurray!

The benefit to the city in increased sales tax dollars from tourists can help the city park maintenance division do its great job of field maintenance on our city parks.

It all goes around in a big circle to help the young swimmers and baseball softball players in town.

You probably have a relative or neighbor participating in one of these meets, leagues and tournaments. Now that the weather is becoming more summer-like, as we are accustomed, it's a great opportunity to support your community, your neighbors and have some fun experienceing the great family life of West Sacramento! Come see a game!

The Tournament of Champions starts in June and All Star Tournaments start at the end of June into early July. Local teams from West Sacramento Little League and Washington Little League compete against other teams in District Six, including Rio Linda, North Natomas and Sierra LL, to name a few.

The First District 6 Tournament of Champions started with the Junior Baseball division and the first game was played on Tuesday, June 7. The Tournaments this year for Jr Division (13-14 yr olds) boys were played out at Rio Linda High School.

The local teams representing WSLL are WS Giants and WS Padres, The teams representing Washington LL are Washington Cubs and Washington Braves.

The WS Padres and WS Giants faced each other on Monday and the WS Giants beat the Padres in 5 innings under the 10-run lead rule.

Both teams were scheduled to play again June 9-10.

The Washington Braves were scheduled to play yesterday.

GUEST COMMENTARY: living on $1.48 per meal

From the office of Assemblymember Mariko Yamada

June is National Hunger Awareness Month, and with the Legislature facing a looming state budget deadline, Assemblymember Mariko Yamada (D-Davis) is taking the "Hunger Challenge" for the fourth consecutive year – her third time as a state legislator. Hunger Challenge participants pledge to live for one week on the nation's average weekly food stamp benefit of $4.33 per day, or just $1.48 per meal (the national average for a meal meeting USDA guidelines is $2.54). Yamada will also blog about her experiences while taking the Challenge.

"The challenge is reminder to me that for millions of Americans, hunger is a daily reality," said Assemblymember Yamada. "While I struggle for only a week, far too many who cannot make ends meet face going hungry every day. Those living in 'food deserts' – often students, the disabled, and seniors – are particularly affected by hunger".

The rules are simple: Eat breakfast, lunch and dinner spending only $1.48 a meal for five days or $22 total. The challenge is whether healthy and tasty meals can be prepared on the grocery budget of millions of Americans receiving food assistance. Assemblymember Yamada began her challenge today which will continue through Friday. She spent $21.34 on the following food items:

1 pound ground turkey - $3.99 (50% discount due to 6/5/11 expiration date)
1 extra firm Tofu Lite -$1.99
1 can chicken corn chowder soup - $1.29
1 can black beans -$0 .79
1 can tuna - $0.99
1 4pk yogurt - $1.49
1 6pk Top Ramen - $0.89
1 loaf 12-grain bread - $2.49
1 red leaf lettuce - $0.79
3 bananas - $0.62
2 tomatoes - $0.52
1 pk fresh green beans - $2.00
1 can organic coffee - $3.49
13 items total = $21.34

Member, California State Assembly

The federal Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program or SNAP (formerly known as the Food Stamp Program) helps feed more than 2 million low-income Californians, more than half of whom are children and eight percent are 60 years of age or older. However, according to The Hunger in America 2010 study, 6 million Californians remain food insecure. California's Food Assistance Program, or CalFresh, is California's number one nutrition and anti-hunger program and distributes SNAP benefits to state beneficiaries. As our countries economic crisis continues, the number of people receiving CalFresh benefits has greatly increased. Still, according to federal statistics, California has the lowest participation rate of all the states and loses $4.9 billion in federal funds because of the state's barriers to enrollment.

"In the face of yet another California budget crisis that disproportionately affects those with the lowest incomes and greatest need, we should encourage all who are eligible to enroll in this federally funded program," continued Yamada.

GUEST OPINION:

Trying to be ready for a disaster

By Christian Sandrock, MD, MPH
Yolo County Health Officer

Over the past 15 years, emergency preparedness has been a public health priority. Funding for emergency preparedness skyrocketed after September 11, 2001 and the subsequent anthrax attacks with significant fundingdirected at public health departments, hospitals, community groups, emergency medical services and law enforcement. As a result, programs were developed for conventional, biological and chemical terrorist attacks, as well as natural disasters. As the threat of pandemic influenza become apparent, and in the wake of Hurricane Katrina, preparedness grants began to encompass an all-hazards approach. With this broad all-hazards approach and events over the past decade, funding remained strong and thus became an essential component of local, state and federal health departments.

In the midst of strengthened emergency preparedness funding, federal funding for general public health has declined by 27% over the past fiveyears. In the past twoyears, the State of California has decreased its public health budget by 8.5%. Fifty-three percent of local health departments nationally have reported cuts over the past threeyears with Yolo County experiencing reductions upwards of13% during this same time period.

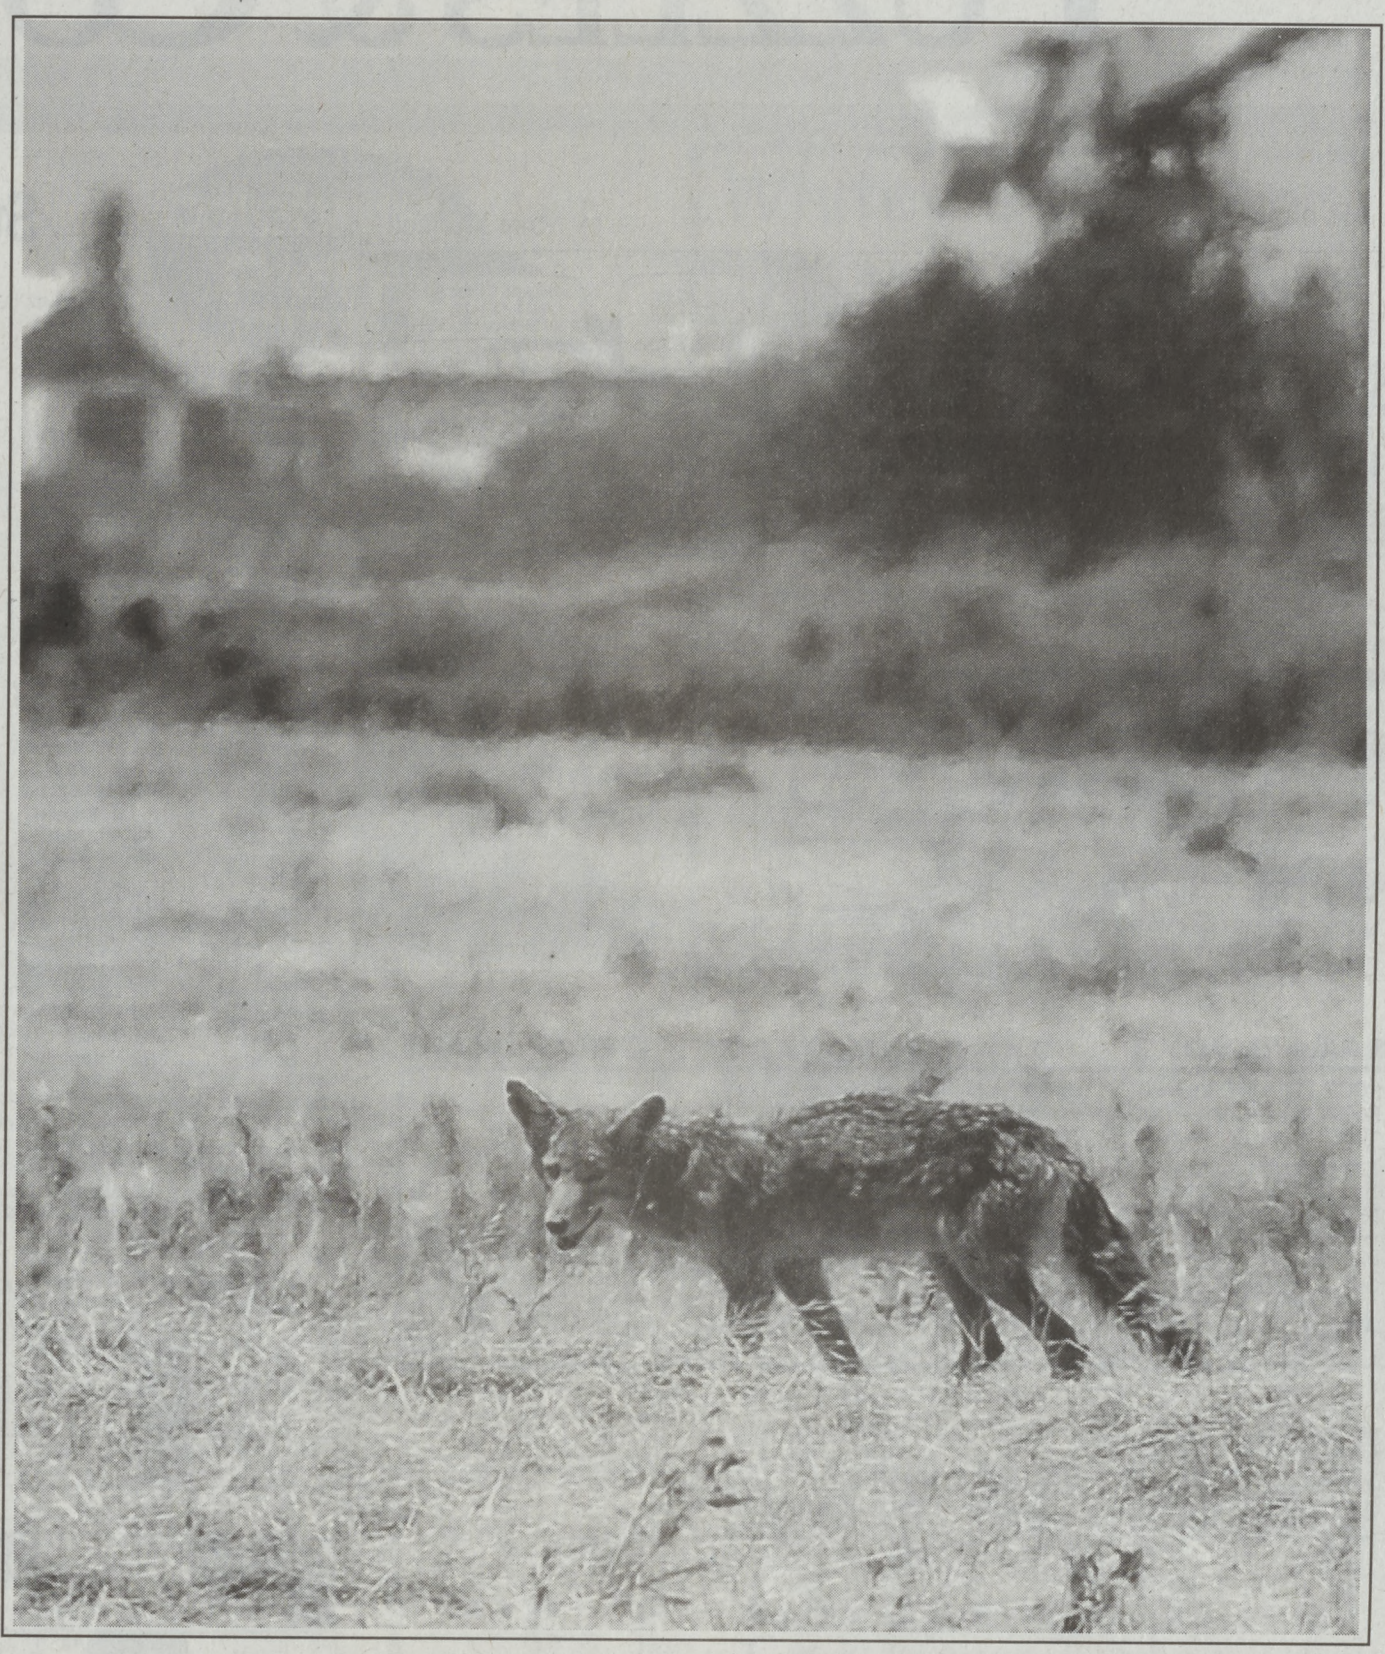
Despitethese broad cuts in public health, funding for emergency preparedness has remained strong, providing financial support foremergency services, communicable disease, hazardous materials response (HAZMAT) and epidemiology. Funding,however,is beginning to decrease, leaving a void in the backbone of essential public health services.Since 2008, Yolo County's state and federal emergency preparedness funding has declined by only 2%. Regrettably, a decrease of nearly 13% is anticipated in next year's funding whichthreatens over a decade of growth and partnership.

Emergency preparedness programs provide a number of essential functions that the community and Yolo County rely on daily. Rapid diagnostic testing and information exchange between public health and medical providers has been solely supported by this funding. Countywide communication systems, from radioto hospital-based redundant systems, are used daily. Response training for emergency medical services (EMS), HAZMAT, physician and nurses are used daily in medical care delivery. The rapid ability to provide mask FIT testing and infection control practices in the H1N1 influenza pandemic were directly related to years of training and preparation. Finally, the development of county and regional emergency preparedness relationships and mutual aid systems has provided intangible benefits.

During the last decade, emergency preparedness funding has provided a platform for county and community providers to develop relationships. Doctors, nurses, EMS providers, law enforcement, fire services, homeland security and public health officials have met to implement these emergency preparedness grants, forming invaluable relationships that have supported day to day activities. In any given moment, these relationships can support a new communicable disease outbreak, mass casualty incident or training exercise. With reductions in funding, these workgroups and relationships are likely to decline with immeasurable impacts.

With the decline in emergency preparedness funding, Yolo County public health will need to be creative in maintaining services. Statewide, public health laboratory support has declined and training and communication systems have been cut. Without these grants as a platform, medical and public health leaders will need to continue regular communication and meetings, perhaps using another avenue than that which was naturally created with the emergency preparedness funding and programs.

An elusive neighbor



Sometimes we forget we still share West Sacramento with nature. But coyotes have been spotted at least a couple of different times in the Lake Washington Boulevard area of northern Southport, and they're often heard howling at night. This one was photographed several days ago in the daytime near the corner of Southport Parkway and Lake Washington Boulevard.

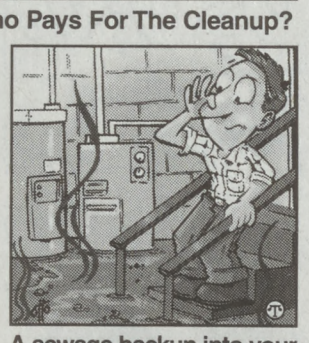
Hints For Homeowners

Sewage In The House? Who Pays For The Cleanup?



A sewage backup into your basement may be only the beginning of your troubles—but you can protect yourself from the cost.

(NAPS)—It's a homeowner's nightmare: sewer backup. Your life is suddenly turned upside down. Everything else on your personal agenda must be thrust aside while you deal with the unwelcome flow.

Often its consequences include thousands of dollars in damage and an unlivable house. All too frequently the cause is a blockage in the municipal sanitary main.

"Many cities and states have laws granting them governmental immunity from reimbursing homeowners for city-caused sewer backup damage into residents' homes," says Robin K. Olson, CPCU, senior research analyst for the International Risk Management Institute. "And even if your city doesn't have total immunity, it might limit the damages it's willing to pay."

For example, it might pay only if it knew of the problem in advance and had a reasonable amount of time to correct it. If the homeowner's tree roots were a partial cause of the backup, the city might pay only a portion of the remediation costs. Typically, homeowners are responsible for maintaining the pipeline from the house to the city sewer main. Further, some places set a maximum figure that they will pay, such as $5,000 or $10,000, that might be wholly inadequate to clean up the mess.

On top of that, homeowners' insurance policies usually do not cover such damage.

"There is a solution," says Olson. "Homeowners should purchase an 'endorsement' to their policy specifically covering such a loss to at least $50,000, including water damage, remediation and cleanup costs."

In addition, there are a few steps you or a professional cleaner can take:

- Wet vac up all the liquid.
- Scoop up all the solids.
- Throw away anything not valuable.
- Cut out soaked drywall and paneling.
- Pressure wash everything with a disinfectant detergent.
- Rinse, then vacuum up all the remaining water.
- Set up fans to dry out the basement.

For expert advice on the insurance, homeowners can consult an agent or broker holding the CPCU designation—assuring experience, advanced professional education and a commitment to high ethical standards.

PICKS OF THE WEEK

Cedar Rapids (R) — This adult comedy takes the more heartfelt approach to its sometimes raunchy material. Small-town insurance salesman Tim Lippe (Ed Helms) is called up to the big leagues in the most important moment of his life so far — an insurance convention in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The real action, however, focuses on the 20-years-too-late coming-of-age story of a timid manchild.

Helms delivers a good performance as the excitable but clueless insurance salesman. You may recognize him from "The Hangover" or even "The Office," in which he plays an excitable but clueless paper salesman. Be careful not to let Helms' dopey likability deceive you. "Cedar Rapids" is a movie bent on taking boyish innocence into seedy territory.

With a solid supporting role held up by John C. Reilley, "Cedar Rapids" squeezes laughs out of awkward moments and the antics of the intoxicated. But not everyone will be on board with this brand of comedy. The movie doesn't make a clear distinction between when to feel sad and when to point and laugh, and the two often overlap. Many of the biggest laughs come right as the audience is most weirded out — but such is the realm of John C. Reilley.

The Adjustment Bureau (PG-13) — This is the movie that dares to ask: Can the power of love defeat mystery men who control the world? If that doesn't sound like a real question to you, then you could be bored by "The Adjustment Bureau." David (Matt Damon) and Elise (Emily Blunt) fall immediately in love, only to find that a shadowy organization has other plans for them.

This is another adaptation of a work by science-fiction author Phillip K. Dick. Like many of its siblings, "The Adjustment Bureau" struggles to give a straight-faced explanation of its sci-fi elements, and it all comes off as a bit silly. Dick's stories often question the nature of truth and reality, but this movie is mostly about two attractive people — with great chemistry — who are determined to be together, no matter what wonky premise tries to pull them apart.

Kiss Me Deadly (1955) (NR) — This fine specimen of film noir gets a Criterion Collection release worth noting. Before the hard-boiled detective movie could become a parody of itself, "Kiss Me Deadly" set a standard with the fastest-pace, seediest joints, sleaziest characters and the anti-est anti-hero to ever take a case.

Q. I can't wait for my favorite show, "Leverage," to come back for its fourth season. When will that be, and can you give me any scoop about the new season? — Kimberly F., St. Louis

A. "Leverage" will be back Sunday, June 26, at 9 p.m. ET/PT on TNT. Timothy Hutton and crew kick off the new season with a snow-bound adventure. Eric Stoltz guest-stars as the Leverage team must recover lost evidence high up on a mountain. I spoke with Timothy about the new season, and he gave me a sneak peek: "There's certainly going to be developments with the Nate/Sophie relationship, with them trying to figure out who they are together and what they want with or from each other."

"The other thing about this season is that the Leverage team is being watched very closely," he said. "They are being hunted by certain people who would like them to stop doing what they are doing, so they're a little bit on the run.

"It adds a nice element of danger to season four, where they're not just independent agents who can move about freely and take down bad guys. They still do that, but they're doing it at quite big risks, because they know that someone is out to get them."

Q. Is it true there are plans to remake "Total Recall"? — Jerry W., via e-mail

A. That's the news spreading around town. Len Wiseman of "Underworld" fame is on board to direct, with Colin Farrell and Kate Beckinsale (who also happens to be Len's wife and favorite go-to leading lady) set to star. Bill Nighy, Bryan Cranston, Jessica Biehl, Ethan Hawke and John Cho also have signed on for the remake of the 1990 film, which is based on a Philip K. Dick story, "We Can Remember It for You Wholesale." The tentative release date is Aug. 3, 2012.

Q. I heard that "United States of Tara" had been canceled, and I am worried that the same fate is planned for "Nurse Jackie," as well as Showtime's other dark comedies like "Weeds" and "The Big C"! — Dean D., via e-mail

Timothy Hutton

A. Don't worry, Dean. "Nurse Jackie" will be back on Showtime for a fourth season, most likely in spring 2012. In the meantime, "Weeds" and "The Big C" both make their season premieres on Monday, June 27.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On June 26, 1892, Nobel Prize-winning author Pearl S. Buck is born. Her novel "The Good Earth" (1930), describing peasant life in China, became an international bestseller and was translated into 30 languages. Buck wrote 80 novels and books.

• On June 25, 1915, the German press publishes an official statement from the country's war command addressing the German use of poison gas at the start of the Second Battle of Ypres two months earlier. The Germans had fired more than 150 tons of lethal chlorine gas against two French colonial divisions in April, claiming the French had first used gas in August 1914.

• On June 23, 1927, The Sioux County Pioneer newspaper of North Dakota reports that President Calvin Coolidge will be "adopted" into a Sioux tribe at Fort Yates on the border of North Dakota. At the Sioux ceremony, photographers captured Coolidge, in suit and tie, as he was given a grand ceremonial feathered headdress.

• On June 22, 1944, President Franklin Roosevelt's administration creates the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, better known as the G.I. Bill. The bill gave returning servicemen access to unemployment compensation, low-interest home and business loans, and — most importantly — funding for education.

• On June 24, 1953, Jacqueline Bouvier and Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy of publicly announce their engagement. Kennedy gave her a 2.88-carat diamond-and-emerald ring. Kennedy went on to become the 35th president and Jackie became one of the most popular first ladies ever to grace the White House.

Steak Sandwich with Grilled Onions

All modesty aside, this is the ultimate steak sandwich — marinated grilled flank steak mingles with hefty slices of grilled onion, ripe tomato and peppery arugula leaves.

- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon fresh thyme leaves
- 1/4 teaspoon ground pepper
- 1 (1 1/4-pound) beef flank steak
- 1 medium (8-ounce) red onion, cut into 4 thick slices
- 8 slices sourdough bread, toasted on grill if you like
- 2 medium ripe tomatoes, sliced
- 1 bunch arugula, tough stems discarded

1. In large self-sealing plastic bag, mix soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, thyme and pepper. Add steak to marinade, turning to coat. Seal bag, pressing out excess air. Place bag on plate; let stand 15 minutes at room temperature or 1 hour in refrigerator, turning over several times.
2. Meanwhile, for easier handling, insert 1 long metal skewer horizontally through onion slices; set aside. Prepare charcoal fire or preheat gas grill for covered direct grilling over medium heat.
3. Remove steak from marinade; pour marinade into 1-quart saucepan. Heat marinade over high heat to boiling; boil 2 minutes.
4. Place steak and onion slices on hot grill rack. Cover grill and cook steak and onion 12 to 15 minutes or until onions are browned and tender and meat is medium-rare, brushing both with marinade occasionally and turning both over once. Transfer steak to cutting board; separate onion into rings.
5. Thinly slice steak diagonally across the grain. Arrange onion rings and steak on 4 slices of bread; spoon any meat juices from board over onion and steak. Top with tomatoes, arugula and remaining 4 slices of bread. Serves 4.

• Each serving: About 210 calories, 3g total fat (1g saturated), 5mg cholesterol, 815mg sodium, 38g total carbohydrate, 4g dietary fiber, 9g protein.

A Gift of Health for Father's Day

Neckties may be the most popular Father's Day gift in the United States, but wouldn't it be nice to give Dad the gift of a long, healthy life? In honor of Father's Day, here are some of the most important foods for protecting men's health.

Tomatoes

Tomatoes contain a variety of compounds that offer protection against prostate cancer — the No. 2 cause of cancer deaths in men, after lung cancer. The powerful antioxidant, lycopene, has received the most media attention. But researchers at the University of Illinois say that tomatoes' health benefits are the result of more than a single compound, proving once again that it's often better to get nutrients as part of a complex mix in foods, rather than as single, isolated compounds in pill form. Researchers at Harvard University found that men who eat at least 10 servings a week of tomato-based foods sharply reduce their risk of prostate cancer. Lycopene is most easily absorbed from cooked tomato products, so enjoy ample servings of tomato juice, sauce, ketchup and salsa.

Soy

Soy has heart- and prostate-protecting effects. About 25 grams of soy protein a day can lower cholesterol levels by up to 6 percent. Soy also may help keep blood vessels more flexible. Mark Messina, a soy expert at Loma Linda University in California, believes in soy's ability to help in the fight against prostate cancer. Messina explains that in Asian countries, men traditionally eat a diet rich in soy, and their incidence of prostate cancer is significantly less than American men.

Tofu isn't the only source of soy. In fact, soy nuts are one of the tastiest and easiest ways to get beneficial soy compounds into your diet. Soy nuts are available in most grocery stores, and you can buy them roasted, salted and flavored. Just one-fourth of a cup delivers 12 grams of heart-protecting soy protein, as well as a variety of compounds called "isoflavones," which appear to deliver prostate protection. Your best bet is to eat soy foods, rather than take concentrated supplements.

Nuts

Nuts are high in fat and calories, but they also deliver a powerful dose of prevention against heart disease — the No. 1 killer of American men. The naturally occurring fat in nuts is mostly unsaturated. Plus, nuts are rich in fiber, protein, vitamin E and an assortment of trace minerals such as copper, zinc, magnesium and selenium.

Orange juice

Orange juice is our No. 1 source of folate, one of the B vitamins that appears to offer a wide range of protection against heart disease and colon cancer. Reach for a glass of 100 percent juice instead of a soft drink.

Dairy

Men with high blood pressure are at greater risk for stroke and heart disease. Weight loss, physical activity and a low-sodium or salt-restricted diet is most commonly prescribed. However, new research shows that diets rich in fruits, vegetables and low-fat dairy products give additional benefit. Low-fat milk products fortified with vitamin D are best because vitamin D also may help protect against prostate cancer. Our best sources of vitamin D are sunlight, fatty fish and fortified milk.

Although questions have been raised about dairy products and risk for prostate cancer, the American Institute for Cancer Research believes that at this point, "We can neither prove nor dismiss the possible link between milk and prostate cancer. More research needs to be done before any changes are made to dietary recommendations for dairy products." Fat and total calorie intake also affect prostate cancer risk. Because of milk's excellent nutrient content and known health benefits, the cancer institute advises men to include small amounts of dairy foods in the diet, but not to go over 2,000 mg of calcium per day.

Fish

Certain varieties of fish, including salmon, tuna, mackerel and sardines, are rich in "omega-3 fatty acids." This particular kind of fat offers protection against death from heart attack. There also is evidence that these fatty acids could help reduce the risk of prostate cancer. Try to eat two fish meals per week.

Vegetables

Men who eat lots of vegetables, especially those in the cruciferous family —broccoli, cauliflower, cabbage and kale — have significantly lower rates of prostate cancer. Vegetables and other plant-based foods including whole grains and beans or legumes also offer protection against heart disease and colon cancer. Eat a variety of vegetables to ensure the best range of protective components, including powerful antioxidants, vitamins, minerals and fiber.

Remember, food is just one component of a healthy lifestyle. Physical activity also is key in preventing a wide range of illnesses. Be aware of your family's history of specific diseases, and schedule regular check-ups and health screenings accordingly. Let your kids catch you setting a good example. Children need their fathers, so celebrate your health and take care of your body.

Dragonstone/The Dragon's Heart
By Michelle Young
(The Wild Rose Press, $14.99)
Reviewed by Cindy Elavsky

Michelle Young's impressive debut novel, "Dragonstone," hits all the notes that a fantasy/romance novel should: strong women, gorgeous men, lovely scenery and life-altering adventure. However, this ain't your mother's romance novel. With "Dragonstone," Ms. Young has created her own niche in the fantasy genre, imagining a world where "magic rules the land, dragons roam the skies, and everyone has their secrets."

The reader is transported to the world of Latharia, where Lady Katerina must fulfill the prophecy of defeating the black magic that is threatening to overtake her land. Because her magic was "awakened" by an act of violence, her Dragonstone, which holds all of her magic power, turns black. Not wanting to use her magic because of the evil that controls the black Dragonstone, she rids herself of it.

Soon Latharia is surrounded by forces that do not want Katerina to inherit the kingdom. With the help of her personal guard, Logan, Katerina must retrieve her Dragonstone and defeat the evil forces that would prefer to reign with evil black magic.

Young's new novel, "The Dragon's Heart," picks up nearly 25 years later, with Katerina's daughter, Syrena, fated to continue her mother's quest to rid Latharia of black magic and defeat the evil Kyron once and for all. In order to fulfill her destiny, she must learn to harness her beast-master magic to help her save her kingdom, all the while trying to gauge if the mysterious Blaze is someone she can trust, or if he has an agenda of his own.

"Dragonstone" and "The Dragon's Heart" aren't your average fantasy/romance novels. They tell a story of love, faith, bravery and the importance of family. It's a must-read series for book lovers of any genre.
